GOVERNOR CAMPBELL'S MISTAKE.

He Could Have Avoided Great Misery by Following the Example of Indiana's Governor.

The last Legislature, which has gone down to history as the embodiment of everything that is corrupt, attempted to saddle upon Indianapolis and Evansville boards of public works. The boards were to be similar to the organization which is disrupting the Ohio Democracy by involving Governor Campbell in a quarrel with his party leaders and the Legislature. Governor Hovey vetoed the bill, which practically took from the two cities named the power to control their own affairs and placed it in the hands of the Legislature. Had Governor Campbell acted similarly he would not now find himself in a snarl that is hurting his party every day and has destroyed effectively any shadow of a chance it may have had of carrying Ohio next month. Had the Democratic Legislature of Indiana had its way the residents of Indianapolis and Evansville would have been disfranchised to a large extent. They would have been without being given a voice in the manner of spending the money for water and light supply, street construction and repairs. It was taxation without representation that the Democrats tried to impose upon these two cities.

Articles of Incorporation. The Indiana Rubber and Insulated Wire Company, of Jonesboro, was incorporated yesterday, with a capital stock of $200,000. The directors are: James H. Seiberling, Monroe Seiberling, Henry M. Matz, Fremont E. Lyon, John A. Barnes, George D. Tate and J. H. Rose. The Tell City Bank was also incorporated, with a capital stock of $25,000 and directors as follows: M. Bettinger, C. T. Schlotzfeld, John Hermann, Peter Hermann and Gustav Falm.

A Low Death Rate.

E. C. Hadden, of the city Board of Health, received an official report from New Orleans yesterday showing that the death rate in that city for the week ending Oct. 11 was 23.41 to 1,000. In this city the rate was less than 11 per 1,000 for the same week.

SPIRIT OF THE CAMPAIGN

Republicans Working Hard and Results Shown in Increasing Confidence.

Democratic Efforts Directed to Saving the Big Three and Legislative Candidates—How to Prepare Ballots—Meetings to Occur.

The work of the campaign was resumed yesterday with an increase of confidence on the part of Republicans, many of them going so far as to predict the election of most, if not all, of the county ticket. On the other hand there was a hopeful conservatism content to look for the best, but careful as to giving any opinion as to the outcome. But throughout party harmony and activity are everywhere present, and not the least of the encouraging signs is the desire expressed by every Republican to know how to stamp his ballot so as to put its validity beyond any question. He does not want to lose his vote, and that makes him solicitous, and any one from whom it is possible to get reliable information on that point is subjected to his earnest inquiries. How to vote seemed yesterday to give secondary position to every other consideration of the campaign, but now and then would come to the front the effectiveness of the Republican candidates. It was the general opinion that they had done so well personally, not counting the excellent, energetic and systematic work of the committees, that their Democratic opponents were being crowded to the last ditch.

It has got into the minds of the people that Taggart's defeat would mean a routing of the whole county ticket of his party, including the legislative nominees. Taggart looks at the situation something in that light, and while his efforts are altogether selfish, leaving the other candidates to take care of themselves, he does not lose sight of the fact that his re-election will make him a bigger boss than ever. His real interest, of course, begins and ends with his desire to make $50,000 more out of the auditor's office. Practically he is a Democrat for revenue only, and the appreciation of this fact will drive from him not only Democratic, but many other votes he received in 1888. His realization of that danger has made him more aggressive. His campaign, however, Browning, has, with his unassuming canvass, grown steadily in the people's favor. His willingness to take a profitable office for one term, his position as a hard-working man, and his fine reputation, have put him forward with strong probabilities of his winning the race.

Wilson, the Democratic candidate for county clerk, is pursuing methods similar to those of Taggart. They hunt votes together, but each is not loath to take advantage of the other when opportunity offers. The nomination of Backus for county treasurer, at the sacrifice of Osterman, was made more to help Wilson than Taggart, the friends of the latter say, but Osterman's friends hold both responsible for that act of political treachery. Wilson profited by it only in having Backus and his friends appear as a body against him for the nomination of county clerk. Taggart acquired a benefit from it by having many of the Backus delegates who intended to vote for Osterman, but who were brought over to his side. The only sufferer is Osterman, who had been led by Taggart, as the head of the county-house ring, to believe that he would be the nominee for treasurer without opposition. The victim of this sacrificial offering on the altar of treacherous politics is now dangerously ill, with typhoid fever, and yesterday hopes of his recovery were becoming less and less.

Stiles, the Republican opponent of Wilson, is pushing his canvass vigorously. Aside from his fitness for the office of county clerk, he has a record as a Union soldier of which any one should be proud. He was courageous on the battle-field, prompt to fulfill all duties, and suffered for months in the rebel prisons of Andersonville and Belle Isle. Johnson, the candidate for treasurer, is leading Backus a hard race. He does not make much of a stir in getting around, but no one has canvassed the county more thoroughly than he, nor of any candidate is there more favorable talk among the people. The people of the Republican candidates, particularly the excellent legislative nominees, are pushing the fight with great energy. So effective have been the work the past two weeks that the Democrats are doing all they can to save a legislative ticket that has been almost about with contemptuous comment since it was nominated. The dirty work in voting and counting by Democrats will be done on account of the candidates for the Legislature, and for Taggart, Wilson and Backus.

The Sentinel, yesterday, printed its idea of a mixed ballot, and one that is being industriously circulated by Democratic managers. It had the stamp to the left of the title of the Democratic ticket. That calls for a vote for every one on that ticket. Leaving, however, the Democratic candidates unstamped, three or four on the Republican ticket were stamped. One of these was for Superior judge and another for the Legislature. As there are three candidates for Superior judge and five for the Legislature on each ticket, the stamping of one on an opposing ticket with the two other judges for whom the voter has a right to vote unstamped, does not count. The stamping of a legislative candidate with four unstamped does not count. The simplest, surest and correct way for the public is to vote a straight ticket by stamping to the left of his party's title. If he wants to vote for somebody on any other ticket let him stamp that candidate and then go over to the Republican ticket and stamp every candidate for whom he desires to vote. If he wishes to vote for a Democratic candidate for Superior judge let him stamp that name, but in doing so he must not fail to stamp two candidates on the Republican ticket. If he wishes, however, to vote for a Democratic nominee for the Legislature, let him stamp that nominee and four on the Republican ticket. A straight ticket requires a stamp on the title of the ticket; a mixed ticket requires a stamp for the name of every candidate for whom the voter desires to vote.

A dry-goods man drew a trade journal on a Journal reporter yesterday. "This," said he, "is the Dry Goods Economist, published in New York, and of great weight among the columns devoted to correspondence from the chief cities of the United States. Here you see the correspondent at St. Paul and Minneapolis notes:

"The wholesale trade has been larger the past season than during any season for the previous five years. Advertisements to be particularly alluring are headed, 'No Advance Taken on the McKinley Bill.' These goods have been imported before the McKinley Bill went into effect."

"Now all this is done to make customers anxious to buy and to force sales. The same correspondent says:

"The outlook for the fall season here was never better. Every indication points to the largest volume of business ever done in our season."

"The Rochester (N. Y.) correspondent notes:

"Local dealers are not trying to make much capital out of the new tariff. About the nearest thing to it is an announcement by A. S. Mann & Co. that they have opened a lot of French stockings 'under the new tariff, worth not less than 50 cents a pair, at 25 cents.'"

"The Boston correspondent writes:

"The settlement of the tariff bill has had a healthy effect on this market, and buyers are disposed to purchase quite liberally, so that the retail houses are doing more harm than good by using the tariff bill as a scare-bait to their trade, hoping thereby to increase their trade at present."

The county clerks from all over the State or their authorized agents will make a pilgrimage to Indianapolis to-day, to-morrow or Thursday for the purpose of procuring the ballots apportioned to their respective counties. Clerk Bookwater, of the election board, is in readiness for their visits and expects the greater number of them to be accompanied by a number of telegrams giving him such notice. The southeast corridor of the State-house is well lighted by packages of ballots, each precinct being properly marked.

There will be some unassailable truths told this week by ex-Governor Foraker, of Ohio, and Hon. W. A. Thobee, of Kentucky. The former will speak to-night at Tomlinson Hall, and will doubtless draw a large crowd. He is one of the best equipped speakers in the country, and knows where to hit Democrats to make them sear the longest. Foraker is a national reputation and puts out argument and denunciation with a force from which the doubter cannot escape. Mr. Thobee is the son-in-law of the great free-trader Carlisle in his own district. He comes here to make five or six speeches in this city and suburbs. On the 25th instant, he will address especially a mass-meeting of workmen at Mozart Hall. Mr. Thobee is now at the Denison.

Political Notes. Robert Groff is an eminently respectable gentleman who is well qualified to fill the position of county recorder.

Tippecanoe county filed an application in the federal court, yesterday, for the appointment of election supervisors.

Every workman should vote for Frank L. Rubbs for the Legislature. He is one of the five excellent legislative candidates who deserve the confidence of all good citizens.

Edward Dunn, Republican candidate for sheriff, is a respected and capable business man. His competitor in part of the court-house ring, and an essential part, too, or he would not have obtained Taggart and Wilson's endorsement.

A Republican who votes for any other candidate for prosecuting attorney except the one on his party's ticket helps the Democratic candidate that much. Either the Republican or Democrat will be elected, and it is nonsense to talk of assisting the former by voting for a third-party candidate.

Bushong, who holds a place in the city clerk's office, and is a member of the election board, is reported, colored voters to scratch names of persons for whom they do not wish to vote. A name scratched means the ballot worthless. Stamping has to be done this time, and that on names of persons for whom one is voting.

Tom Taggart has a record also in railroad strikes, and is a member of the union. "During the strike of union switchmen in this city two years ago the non-union men who took the places of the strikers were promptly arrested and sent to the Union Station restaurant, then as now in charge of Taggart. Talk about sympathy with union labor! Tom Taggart has sympathy for no one he cannot use for personal ends."

Henry G. Stiles is entitled to the support of every old soldier. John R. Wilson's riches enabled him to secure the nomination for clerk over Charles W. Bridges, a worthy soldier and member of the Traveling Men's Association and Salesmen's Union. But Wilson's family and influence were altogether with the Confederacy during the rebellion, and when it comes to a fair and square contest before the people his money and position will avail him little. The old soldiers will be found on election day well armed with votes for their comrade, Henry G. Stiles.

Morris, who is visiting Mrs. R. L. Kilm on East Sixth street. The entertainment was characterized by all of those hospitalities that make social life agreeable.

MARSHALL, Ill., Oct. 20.—James R. Sullivan, of Fort Smith, Ark., and Miss Nancy Montgomery, of this city, were married last evening.

THE POLICE ORGANIZATIONS.

No Political Work of Any Character Can Be Done by the Metropolitan.

The Police Commissioners, at their regular meeting yesterday, conferred special powers upon Frank Scott, watchman at the New York store, and B. F. Wilson, an extra merchant policeman. The contract for heating the station-house was given the Indianapolis Natural-gas Company at $98 per year. The attention of Superintendent Travis was called to the fact that rumors are current that certain members of the force were engaged in political work. The Superintendent was told to call the attention of the officers and patrolmen to Rule 3, page 48, of the Metropolitan police code, and to state that any violation of this rule will cause dismissal from the force. Superintendent was further instructed to announce these orders of the board at the first roll-call. This was accordingly done at 7 o'clock last night.

Co-Operative Insurance Proposed.

A movement is on foot among the Merchant police to organize an insurance company among themselves on the plan of the association kept up by the Metropolitan police. Messrs. Kingsbury, McShultz and others have charge of the matter.

TWO OF THEM STEP DOWN AND OUT.

The Williamses at the Poor Farm Resign—Result of a Quarrel with a Commissioner.

C. S. Williams, superintendent of the county asylum and poor farm, and his son Otto, steward, tendered their resignations yesterday to the County Commissioners. They both claim they cannot remain in office on account of continued ill health in their family, and their resignations were accepted at once. The whole matter was the result of a pre-concerted plan. Mr. Williams has not given satisfaction even to a board of Democratic commissioners, and it is stated on unquestioned authority that his resignation was demanded a week ago.

His troubles date back nearly a year. When Mr. Emrich became a member of the board of County Commissioners he made an investigation of Mr. Williams's accounts, and found he had reported no receipts and expenditures as the law requires. He called the superintendent to task, and the two men became involved in a quarrel. Mr. Williams, however, realized his own position, and did make a report last June, but this is the last one his records show. Mr. Emrich, it is said, has repeatedly insisted upon Williams's resignation, and at last he has succeeded.

The vacancies were filled at once by the commissioners. Charles Loftin was appointed superintendent, Alice Loftin was made matron and John Garity steward.

ITEMS FOR THE APIARISTS.

October Raspberries and Strawberries Furnish Honey for Bees.

Sylvester Johnson, of Irvington, was walking in his garden yesterday, and, hearing the bees humming around him, began an investigation to see upon what they were feeding. He was surprised to find that nearly all his raspberry vines were in bloom, and upon closer examination discovered that quite a number were plentifully supplied with a crop of half-grown berries. Examining his strawberry-beds he found a number of clusters of fruit, and one of them was quite well ripened. He thought it to the city, and showed it to a number of persons. "My bees began feeding in February," said Mr. Johnson, "and now they are out in the last days of October taking honey from the second crop of raspberry blossoms. It looks as if we were going to have real California weather here in Indiana."

Paper on Italian Bees.

Minister Porter has written from Rome to Secretary Heron, of the State Board of Agriculture, inclosing a paper on Italian bees to be read before the annual meeting, next January, of the Bee-keepers' Association. The paper is a translation of a letter received by Mr. Porter in answer to some inquiries he made of the Central Association for the Encouragement of Agriculture in Italy on the subject of the bees named, and the proper mode of shipping them to distant markets. He expressed himself as much interested in the subject.

Engineer Mahan, of the Big Four, Shot.

J. R. Mahan, a well-known engineer on the Big Four, was shot at by some unknown miscreant while running his train under a bridge near Lawrenceburg on Saturday evening last. He was seriously hurt in the right arm and side by a charge of large bird-shot. He was removed to his home at 174 Harrison street, in this city. Mr. Mahan is wise enough to carry an accident policy in the Railway Officials' and Conductors' Central Association, of this city, and yesterday (Monday morning) his first week's indemnity was sent to him by the association immediately upon learning of his mishap. If Sunday had not intervened he would have received it within fifteen hours of his injury.
